Barton is an Executive Coach and Facilitator with The Preston Associates, a London-based coaching boutique serving leaders across Europe, Asia, and the U.S. He brings extensive international experience in strategy, marketing, and general management, having led large business units and teams at Procter & Gamble, Johnson & Johnson, and Bayer. With a career spanning both the U.S. and the U.K., he understands the complexities of leading in global organizations.

EXPERIENCE

Barton specializes in leadership development, neurodiversity, stress management, and emotional and cognitive intelligence. He holds an MBA from Columbia University, where he also completed the Coaching Certification Program, and is currently advancing his expertise with an MSc in Psychology and Neuroscience at King's College London. He is a certified practitioner of Hogan Assessments and the Neethling Brain Instrument.

Beyond coaching, Barton serves on the Advisory Board for the University of Wisconsin Department of Economics and mentors LGBTQ+ entrepreneurs through StartOut. A former President of the Red Oaks School Board of Trustees, he is committed to fostering growth and inclusion at both organizational and community levels.
